

SOC 111 Sociology of Mass Communication (2 Units)

The theoretical, conceptual, and evaluative aspects of human communication; a basic foundation for the study of human communication, particularly in indigenous societies. The nature, functions, and growth of the Mass Media and their institutions. The implications of the growth mass-media institutions; how the mass media shape view and modify behaviour; an their role in fashioning a “new” society now and later.