

SOC 211 The Military and the State (2 Units)

An introductory study, from a social science/ perspective, of the military as rulers –law –makers and law-enforcers. The role of the military in national and international relations, with special attention to theories of war and peace. Civil-military relations; the military and politics in Africa; and the non-military uses of the with particular reference to the West African subregion.